June 1: Injured Workers Day - St Catharines

June 1 is Injured Workers Day in Ontario and mobilizations of injured workers and their supporters are being planned for a number of cities across the province. One of these will be held for the second consecutive year here in St. Catharines in front of the WSIB offices on St. Paul St.

This important province-wide day of action constitutes an invaluable opportunity to hold Ontario's Liberal government accountable for its abysmal failure to re-write the wrongs of the previous Tory government with respect to workers compensation legislation and do so in a way that will deliver long overdue justice to Ontario's injured workers. The Ontario Network of Injured Workers Groups (ONIWG) is at the forefront of these mobilizations. The CAW is a member organization of ONIWG and its workers compensation activists have been steadfast in supporting ONIWG's ongoing efforts. The struggle for justice for injured workers continues.
